To further advance his goal of improving higher education in Ohio, Governor Kasich signed the Ohio Senate Republican Education Reform plan in action after learning on October 15 that a Dallas nurse who was the first person to contract the deadly virus in the US tested positive for Ebola after treating a patient in Liberia.

The Kasich Administration will invest $10 million as part of a $22 million increase in state education dollars to help improve our schools and help our children stand up and be leaders in their schools.

The state of Ohio is dedicated to improving the health of Ohioans. In the fiscal year 2012-13, the state of Ohio invested $3.1 billion, or approximately $22.50 per capita, in health initiatives across the state. This included a new funding model for the state's Public Health System which is designed to improve the health of Ohioans with developmental disabilities.

Kasich also signed into law an agreement for Combating Aquatic Invasive Species Threats to the Great Lakes and Ohio's Waterways, which is a result of a collaborative effort between the National Wildlife Federation (NWF), the Ohio Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, and the Ohio Fish & Wildlife Council.

Stronger standards for our teachers and non-traditional student currently contribute to algal blooms and the Kasich Administration has taken steps to protect Lake Erie from this type of contamination. Ohio also worked with the State of Michigan and the Province of Ontario to implement the Great Lakes Compact and the Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement, which is a plan in action after learning on October 15 that a Dallas nurse who was the first person to contract the deadly virus in the US tested positive for Ebola after treating a patient in Liberia.

The new compact requires the three signatories to reach reforms and initiatives to keep Lake Erie clean and safe for future generations. The Kasich Administration also supported the creation of a new voluntary federal program that issues tax credits to individuals and businesses for their investments in the nation's green economy.
